After The Board Decision And Reasons For Allowance

As per the March 29, 2005 Decision, the anticipation rejections of claims 1-12 over Dedrick and claims 1-18 and 20-50 over Goldhaber were reserved by the Board.

Regarding the claimed invention or particularly independent claims 1, 13, 18, 21 and 34, for example, Goldhaber teaches in general a system wherein a user or consumer is paid to read advertisements from an advertiser, attention brokerage or other parties. In one embodiment, the consumer clicks or activates a Cybercoin icon 62, associated with an advertisement, to initiate retrieval from a server (Attention Brokerage Server 106) and display of the associated advertisement on the consumer's computer 104 screen. In the interactive embodiment, the displayed advertisement asks the consumer a series of questions related to the viewing of the advertisement. The displayed advertisement, as herein understood, having an embedded code that causes the computer 104 to send a first signal, indicative of the user's activation and the user's interaction with the said advertisement, upward to the Attention Brokerage Server 106 (administration server), which returns a message or a second signal or a digital cash, in the form of a computer code, related to the said advertisement (related to the successful activation of the advertisement) and representative of the Cybercoin 62 to the user's computer 104 to be stored in a (cookie) file or a digital cash repository 126 file subsequent to determining by the Server 106 that the user has successfully completed the process (storing in a file on the user's computer an indication that the ad was successfully viewed on the user's computer, wherein this information can be used to prevent the user from receiving additional compensations for subsequent displays or interactions with the said ad) [(reads on the steps of displaying an ad on the user's computer and receiving a signal at the server that the ad was activated and in response creating a cookie or a file on the user's computer or sending an indication to be stored on the user's computer that the ad was activated, as depicted in fig. 1 of the Instant Application and recited in the independent claims)] (See col. 16: 6-15; col. 10: 65 to col. 11: 7; fig. 12; col. 16: 42 to col. 17: 63).

Art Unit: 3622

However, the Board agreed with the Appellant that a Cybercoin, as taught by Goldhaber, is not a code associated with an advertisement, wherein the code initiates sending a signal to the server indicative of the activation of the advertisement and that clicking on the Cybercoin icon initiates retrieval of the advertisement and does not initiate a signal (see Board Decision on page 10: 4-10). Moreover, the Board concluded that Goldhaber does not disclose that an indicator (or information) associated with the advertisement stored on the user computer is provided by the server or administration computer (See Board Decision on page 14: 1-5).

Thus, in response to the Board Decision, as briefly described above, the Application has been passed to allowance. In other words, and in accordance with the Board Decision, claims 1-18 and 20-50 are said to be allowable over Dedrick and Goldhaber.
